

CHAPEL HILL, NC--

Katie Clark

Capturing the often elusive beauty of the universe, land and world around us, Daniel James Alpert is a photographer with out-of-this-world talent. His photography freezes the alluring, the grandiose, and the resplendent, leaving viewers captivated by the incredible diversity of his shots. Daniel's images range from the juxtaposition of the natural with the man-made world to a star-kissed night sky above a desert blanketed by the dim light of dusk. His hunger for the perfect shot leads him on journeys through the Southwestern United States - locations that bleed a natural, boundless beauty which he captures through the click of a lens.

Daniel, 29, has taken the photography world by storm, using his attention to detail, skilled eye for light and his patience in timing not only the perfect look but the perfect moment. Earning a degree in photography from Northern Arizona University in 2016, Daniel is a highly-skilled and technologically-savvy photographer who sells prints on his personal website, <https://www.danieljamesphoto.com/>, and through a Phoenix-based Art Gallery called ArtStudio 101. Daniel has been selling his work for two years, perfecting his skill of capturing and sharing the natural and unnatural world around us. The images he produces have sold nationwide, allowing the country to see the beauty of the American Southwest through his talented eye.

Though Daniel is dedicated to his photography of the American Southwest, he is also an ambassador for Slik USA Tripods and Lume Cube, Inc. Slik, a US based tripod manufacturer, sells high-quality tripods, heads, and accessories used by avid photographers around the world. Similar to his representation for Slik USA, Daniel also sports his use of Lume Cube Lights combined with a DJI drone to create some truly unique night images by lighting the scene from the air. These companies chose Daniel to be an ambassador for their equipment because of his incredible ability to use those tools as aids during his adventurous photoshoots.

Through traveling, photographing, selling, and posting his images, Daniel has captured the alluring and ever changing beauty of the American Southwest. Prints are available through his <https://www.danieljamesphoto.com/prints-1/> website, where viewers can see and purchase prints from Daniel's curated gallery. His personal instagram, @danieljames.photography, contains hundreds of his best shots where thousands of fans are inspired by his posts every day. Daniel's photography illustrates incredible patience, planning, and an unchallenged eye for the spectacular nuance of our cyclical and evolving world. The open plains, wind-carved canyons, vast mountain ranges and open starry skies are beautifully portrayed in his unique and inspiring style. His images will take you on a journey across the American Southwest through a lens you have never seen before and may never see again.
